I. Introduction

NHATS has identified some data fields and data files that require additional protection beyond what is implemented for public use data. Access to these data requires additional information about the researcher requesting the data and agreement to observe restrictions on cell sizes in publications and presentations from these data.

This document describes procedures for researcher access to NHATS Sensitive Data files. These procedures were developed with the aim of ensuring that critical national research on disability trends and trajectories can be undertaken in a way that does not compromise respondent confidentiality.

Each application for access to NHATS Sensitive Data will be reviewed by the NHATS Data Confidentiality Committee for conformance with the requirements outlined in this document. Sensitive Data will only be distributed with the approval of the Committee.

Questions regarding the application process may be sent to: nhatsdata@westat.com. Please use the subject heading: Sensitive Data Question

II. Application Process for Sensitive Data Files

Applicants for NHATS Sensitive Data must be persons with a PhD or other terminal degree (e.g., MD; MPH; Master's degree) who hold a faculty appointment or research position at a university, research institution, or U.S. government agency. Other institutional research settings will be considered upon request.

Students who are pursuing a terminal degree can gain access to NHATS Sensitive Data by having a faculty member in their institution sponsor their request by acting as the requesting Investigator. In these cases, students are identified on the Investigator form and must sign the Supplemental Agreement with Research Staff form. Sensitive data files remain with the sponsoring faculty member once a student is no longer affiliated with the sponsoring faculty member's institution.

The following forms (see Section III. Forms) must be submitted to apply for NHATS Sensitive Data:

- NHATS Sensitive Data Investigator Form
- NHATS Sensitive Data Use Agreement
- NHATS Sensitive Data Supplemental Agreement with Research Staff (if applicable)

Forms should be downloaded, completed and signed, and submitted by email as PDFs to nhatsdata@westat.com. Please use the subject heading: Sensitive Data Application.

Once the application is reviewed and approved, the investigator making the data request will be notified by email and will receive instructions to access and download the files from the NHATS website.

The Sensitive Data Files are only for the use of the approved investigator and supplemental research staff who have signed the Supplemental Agreement with Research Staff. NHATS Sensitive Data files may not be shared or distributed to individuals who have not signed the NHATS Sensitive Data Use Agreement.
